ANTH 5050.810/820
Preparation for Practice and the Applied Thesis
Fall 2018

INSTRUCTOR: Dr. Lisa Henry
OFFICE HOURS: Mondays 12pm-3pm CST, Chilton 330P, or by appointment 940-565-4160
email: lisa.henry@unt.edu, Skype name: lisa.r.henry

Course Designers: Christina Wasson and Lisa Henry

OVERVIEW OF THE CLASS:
Welcome! This class will provide a foundational training in the professional aspects of applied anthropological work. We will draw on scholarly readings and interactions with guest speakers to explore the diversity of contemporary applied anthropological research, and we will address some of the major theoretical, disciplinary, and ethical complexities of doing applied anthropological research in today’s world. Throughout, students will also receive training in the professional aspects of applied anthropology that you will use to develop and/or progress on your own applied thesis project. We will address aspects such as client development, project design, marketing, and other important skills.

COURSE OBJECTIVES
• Become familiar with the diversity of applied anthropological work, including theoretical and methodological approaches
• Learn and be able to discuss the major debates around, and ethical complexities of, doing applied anthropological work today
• Develop your applied thesis project, including learning more about potential fieldsites, conducting informational interviews, and completing a project statement
• Complete a proposal for your thesis (for some this may be a hypothetical proposal)

REQUIRED READINGS
There is one required text for this course, “Using Anthropology in the World: A Guide to Becoming an Anthropologist Practitioner, by Riall W. Nolan (2017). This book is available for purchase in person or online at the UNT Bookstore. All other readings can be found on our course page in CANVAS.

GENERAL COURSE INFORMATION
Late work: I generally do not accept late assignments unless you have made specific arrangements with me in advance, have a doctor’s note, and/or otherwise have received my approval. However, I am not a tyrant. If you are struggling, please see me and I will do my best to work with you.

Academic Honesty, or, Just Don’t Cheat: The Department of Anthropology does not tolerate plagiarism, cheating, or helping others to cheat. Plagiarism is defined as misrepresenting the work of others (whether published or not) as your own. It may be inadvertent or intentional. Students suspected of any of these will be provided the opportunity for a hearing; if found guilty they can receive an automatic “F” in the course. In addition, I reserve the right to pursue further disciplinary action within the UNT legal system, which can result in your dismissal from the university. For additional resources to help with paper writing, including how to avoid plagiarism and how to use citations, see http://www.unt.edu/anthropology/writing.htm. For information on the University’s policies regarding academic integrity and dishonesty, see the UNT Center for Student Rights and Responsibilities, http://www.unt.edu/csrr/.

Academic Accommodations: The University of North Texas is committed to providing accommodation for all students with disabilities. If you have or acquire a disability that may affect your participation in class, I will strive to accommodate your needs. To ensure that the necessary accommodations are made, be sure to contact the Office of Disability Accommodation (located in Sage Hall) as soon as possible to ensure your needs are met in a timely manner. They will work with both of us to ensure proper accommodations are made. If you need accommodations, please remember that reasonable prior notice needs to be given to the Office of Disability Accommodation. Note that students need to obtain a new letter of accommodation for every semester and meet with each faculty member prior to implementation in each class. For additional information see the Office of Disability Accommodation website at http://www.unt.edu/oda. You may also contact them by phone at 940.565.4323.

Non-Discrimination Policy: It is the policy of the University of North Texas not to discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, disability (where reasonable accommodations can be made), disabled veteran status or veteran of the Vietnam era status in its educational programs, activities, admissions or employment policies. In addition to complying with federal and state equal opportunity laws and regulations, the university through its diversity policy declares harassment based on individual differences (including sexual orientation) inconsistent with its mission and education goals. Direct questions and concerns to the Equal Opportunity Office, 940-565-2456, or the Dean of Students, 940-565-2648. TDD access is available through Relay Texas, 800-735-2989.

WEEKLY CYCLE
The course runs on a weekly cycle. There is one lesson for each week. Discussions for each lesson will last one week, from Monday morning through Sunday night.
- All students must read the lesson and the assigned readings. Also, they must start posting to the discussion board no later than Tuesday of each week.
- All assignments are due by 11:30 PM CT on Sunday on the week they are due.
- There will be a multiple one-hour videoconferences throughout the semester. These will be opportunities to discuss course topics and readings, ask questions about preparation for the applied thesis, and to hear guest presenters. We will need to arrange a consistent time and day for videoconferences that works for everyone; please post your availability on the Week 1 discussion board ASAP.
COURSE REQUIREMENTS

1. Discussion (25%, 250 points): Participation in classroom discussions through the Canvas Discussion forum. As a graduate seminar, your participation is vital to the success of this class. The goal of our online written discussions is to duplicate a face-to-face conversation as much as possible, in terms of having a good back-and-forth among class participants. I will be assessing you for the overall quality of the whole conversation, rather than the magnificence of an individual post.

Your participation grade will be based on the content of your posts, including:

• Do you demonstrate that you have completed the assigned readings?
• Do you offer thoughtful analyses, reflections, and critiques of the topics discussed in class?
• Do your comments build on the comments of other class members?

Your participation grade will also be based on the structure and timing of your posts:
• Post your first message(s) by Tuesday of every week.
• Try to check the discussions daily; focus on contributing to just a few threads if your time is limited.
• Only one idea per message!
• Frequent small posts are better than humongous messages at rare intervals. This will enable more back-and-forth between you and your classmates.
• If you have a new thought that you want to share, start a new conversational thread by clicking “Create Thread”– this will promote discussion of the topic. If everyone just hits “Reply” to previous messages the overall structure of the conversation will become confusing.
• Change the subject line when you are replying to a message but shifting the focus.
• If other people have already said what you wanted to say about one topic, move on to a different topic.
• Don’t put your thoughts in a Word attachment, write them directly in the message field.

Discussion Board Posting Requirements (50 posts, 3 pts each, 150 points total): You need at least 50 substantial discussion posts during the entire semester. Below is a rough guide of how many posts per lesson will get you there.

• Lesson 2: ~2 posts during the week
• Lessons 3-7: ~4-5 posts during the week
• Lesson 8: ~2-3 posts during the week
• Lesson 9-13: ~4-5 posts during the week
• Lessons 14, 15: ~2-3 posts during the week

AdobeConnect Videoconferences (100 points): Attendance and active discussion is required during all videoconferences. You must contribute to the class discussion to earn discussion points during these meetings.
2. Applied Thesis-related Assignments (75%, 750 points): This course has a series of assignments that function like a funnel: they start out broad, and then each subsequent assignment helps you narrow your ideas and plans for the applied thesis, until, in the last assignment (the proposal) you are able to succinctly lay out a concrete plan of action.

• All assignments are due by Sunday at 11:30 PM CT at the end of the week they are due.
• Assignments should be submitted in the Assignments area of the course.
• Instructions for each item are provided at the end of the syllabus.

Instructions for Assignments

1. Field of Interest Paper

Write an essay about your field of interest, be it public health, refugees, organizational change, or whatever.

First of all, be as specific as you can about your interests. What is it about this field that draws you to it? Do you have previous experience in this area? What kind of organization might you work in, for your applied thesis and, later on, for your career (if relevant)?

Secondly, describe important issues or problems that organizations in this field are currently dealing with. Be as specific as you can. If you want, you can focus on the situation in a particular community or agency. If you are not that familiar with your field of interest, do some library/web research to identify current issues. How can an applied anthropologist help with these issues?

The essay should be about 2 ½ - 3 pages, single-spaced, with page numbers.

2. Organizations List

Prepare a list of 5 organizations that could be potential sites/clients for your applied thesis. For each organization, include ALL of the following information:

- Name of organization
- Address of organization
- Website of organization
- Name, job title, department, phone number, and email address of at least one contact person who might be able to sponsor your applied thesis (i.e., not the receptionist)
- Brief explanation of how you found out about the organization/contact person
- Brief explanation of what the organization does
- How the organization relates to your research interests

3. Interview Summary #1

In order to complete this assignment, you must first conduct an informational interview. This is an opportunity for you to ask someone in your field of interest for advice about designing your applied thesis. You will also ask them more generally about their job and their field of work. You will learn how to do an informational interview in class.

Do not choose someone you already know well – the point is to expand your network. Do not conduct the interview using email. It should be face-to-face or by phone or Skype.

Write a summary of what you learned in the informational interview. What did you learn about the person’s field of work? What did you especially like/dislike/find exciting/find boring? What advice did you get on setting up your applied thesis?

The summary should be about 2-3 pages, single-spaced.
Note: Start planning your interviews many weeks before the assignments are due, because it can take a surprisingly long time to set them up. Expect that you may have to put a fair amount of effort into finding a good person to interview. Coordinating schedules can take weeks too; many of these people are very busy.

4. Resume

Prepare a resume based on Nolan Ch. 13 and class discussions. The audience for the resume should be your potential applied thesis sites.

5. Project Statement

Design a one-page summary of your desired applied thesis for potential clients. You may not go over one page but you can be creative with fonts, line spacing, and so forth. Make the page visually appealing, so potential clients will want to read it through. You will learn more about how to design a project statement in class, before the assignment is due. The point of the statement is to have something to hand organizations when you approach them, that tells them what you want to do and how they will benefit. The most common mistake students make with this assignment is to focus too much on themselves and not enough on what they can do for the client.

6. Interview Summary #2

Same instructions as Interview Summary #1.

As an alternative, you can proceed to actually contacting organizations about your applied thesis and setting up interviews. In that case, write about your initial applied thesis-seeking meeting(s).

7. Proposal

The proposal may be either somewhat hypothetical or the one you will actually put to use. Even if you are not ready to start your applied thesis, writing out a hypothetical proposal will provide you with a strong foundation for the final version.

The proposal format should follow the guidelines established by the department. They can be accessed on the website for this course. You will learn more about how to write a proposal in class.
