

Re Calderón Anthropology Scholarship Application

The Department of Anthropology is pleased to announce the Re Calderón Anthropology Scholarship, funded by a generous donation from Dr. Alicia Re Cruz and her husband, Dr. Jose Calderón in memory of Salustia Arteaga. The Re Calderón Scholarship is a competitive award granted to an anthropology graduate student every other academic year. Students should express special interest in social justice issues when designing and discussing their graduate research agenda. The amount of the scholarship is $1,000 towards tuition and fees.

Eligibility:

- Current graduate student working on their thesis research project
- Maintain a GPA of 3.0 or above at the time of application
- Full-time enrollment (9 hours per semester for on-campus/6 hours for online)

Submission Requirements:

Students interested in applying for this scholarship should email their application and required essay as a single PDF document by TBA to Dr. Jamie Johnson at jamie.johnson@unt.edu.

First & Last Name:

Student ID:

Email:

Phone:

Current GPA:

Please write a short essay based on the following guidelines (word limit 750):

1. Describe your planned research project – including the project client, project background and project design.
2. Describe where you are in the research process – what you have done and what you still need to accomplish.
3. Describe the significant social impacts of this project both to community of study and the discipline of anthropology.

Signature: